Barely one month after the triumphant launch of its two new flagship smartphones, Nokia has decided to discontinue its smartphones in India. In a blog post, the Finnish company said that it had stopped selling its smartphones in India and would no longer maintain or service its devices. The move is apparently part of Nokia's strategy to cut costs and focus its resources and sales on the smartphones that have been selling well. According to a report in Tech2, Nokia has already sold off many of its smartphones in India. "As a result of our products not meeting the consumer demand in India, Nokia has decided to discontinue the sale of our products in the country and to discontinue its maintenance and service activities there," Nokia said. "We have offered to the market in India to transfer the rights of Nokia's future mobile devices, including handsets, feature phones and e-tablets, to the company that will take over those operations. Our objective is that the Nokia brand will remain as a trusted, global brand, with its products being sold at authorized Nokia dealers," the statement said. A report by Tech2 cites Nokia as saying that the move was a part of its plan to focus on smartphones. "Our focus remains on smartphones and we expect to see strong growth of Nokia smartphones in India in coming years," the company said. Nokia had announced its first two smartphones, the Nokia 6 and the Nokia 8 Sirocco, in late March. They had gone on sale in India from April 25, with the Nokia 6 priced at Rs 9,999 and the Nokia 8 Sirocco priced at Rs 14,999. According to a report in Business Standard, Nokia will soon begin selling the company's feature phones in India. "In case of feature phones, we will shift focus to a more efficient business model," Shashi Tyagi, president, Nokia India said.

What's New In AutoCAD?

Add consistency to your designs. Rediscover your CAD workflow with Markup Assist, a new application for writing feedback within CAD. Create markups and apply them at a single location to your drawings. The technology behind Markup Assist is inspired by computer vision, where artificial intelligence learns to perceive, interpret and write down human language. Collaborate without boundaries. Use AutoCAD to send and receive feedback. Add revisions and comments to CAD drawings, from any location. New Shape Edits tools: New shape editing tools in AutoCAD 2020 introduced some very subtle shape changes – all those little details – that have gone unnoticed until now. With the new Shape Editing tools in AutoCAD 2023, you can tweak the shape of a 2D object in AutoCAD, even when the viewport is locked to a particular object. Standard features Automatic parts generation: Create 3D forms with no effort. Create solid and surface models with high-quality snap, matching and surface fitting. New cutting features: Use the precision and efficiency of 3D modeling to cut with ease. Eliminate the need for hand-placed settings and control over cuts with varying degrees of sharpness. PDF conversion: Stay on top of the latest industry trends with new file management and PDF conversion options, including direct export to Adobe Acrobat. Saving workspace: Manage large drawings with multi-threading. Scale your AutoCAD drawings with multi-threading. You'll notice a big increase in performance. Document management: Store your drawings in the cloud or on your local drive with new document management features. Share drawings, placeholders, scales, annotations and layers with users and make it easy to find and edit. Improved mobile experience: Easily view, modify and draw on CAD drawings on the go. With new mobile editing features, you can edit drawings on your smartphone or tablet, and bring those drawings directly into your own personal space. New capabilities: Draw and edit in layers, using layers with functions like shadowing, lighting and hatch. Change your drawing and model space: Use the workspace system in AutoCAD to manage your drawings in your preferred drawing style. New drawing and model space: Create, manage and share your own workspace to enhance your
