Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a head cleaning device for a fluid jet recording system for recording information by discharging a liquid from a recording head by means of a fluid pressure, and to a head cleaning method thereof. 2. Description of the Prior Art In a typical recording method of the above type, a recording medium in the form of a sheet or web is made to run through a recording zone formed by a discharge area, where ink or some other liquid is discharged from the recording head, and an ink-supplying area in which ink is supplied to the recording head from an ink tank or an ink container. In this case, if the material of the wiping element becomes dirty with use, it may cling to the discharge area. For this reason, cleaning the wiping element in the vicinity of the discharge area is very important for maintaining good recording performance. If the element is held in contact with a fixing member such as a sheet, it is likely to cause malfunction of the wiping element, which is in contact with the discharge area, because
