SEASON PASS

Would you like a full set of data from the original version of "Tarnished Soul" only one time after the release of the game? You will then be able to enjoy all newly added story, new class quests, the expanded world map, and the original map reload feature. (Only 3 times per month, which corresponds to each update period of the new version.)

*Recharge time for ONLINE matches (and other uses of the online function) will extend to more than three hours.

*The following discrepancies were discovered between the original and new version, as our priority in game development on Tarnished Soul is the addition of new content. However, we will continuously supervise it and take measures as needed.

- Changes to character settings such as allocating a large number of attributes may distort your play style.
- Dynamic graphics and sound may be unsuitable for some players' devices due to technical limitations.

Bone mineral density (BMD) is recognized as a determinant of fracture risk. However, the natural change in BMD in adulthood and its relationship to other health outcomes are less understood. Using the Taiwan National Health Insurance Research Database, we assessed the natural changes in total hip, spine, and femoral neck BMD and the relationship of these changes with weight and skeletal muscle cross-sectional area (cm2) at 5 years of follow-up in the Osteoporotic Hip and Lameness Evaluation of Aging Related Loss of BMD (OPAL) study in 319 women and 76 men. The changes in BMD and their relationship to weight and skeletal muscle cross-sectional area were compared in the women only. Pair-wise Pearson correlation coefficients and linear regression were used to estimate associations between variables. BMD and weight in participants was decreased by 5%, 14%, and 8% in the femoral neck, spine, and total hip, respectively, from baseline to 5 years of follow-up. Femoral neck and spine BMD showed a weak association with weight (r = 0.23, P
