The Red Devils defeated Hoffenheim 4-2 with the goals coming from Vietto (2), Lingard and Zlatan Ibrahimovic. Matic played in the Europa League final and started off the match against Hoffenheim, but didn't have a good game and was substituted off in the 44th minute. According to the Daily Mail, Mourinho was unhappy with the performance, but refused to put a foot wrong when he spoke to Matic. "Matic is suffering and we are suffering with him," Mourinho said. "You know that. The only good thing is the fact that it's not any serious injury. "In the end we need his team-mates, [Pierre-Emerick] Aubameyang, [Pierre-Jose]-Pereira and [Victor] Lindelof, because if we lose them it will be really bad. "I hope it's not a broken bone," he added.

"We have to wait, but it's not an injury that is going to be a problem. He has to manage this, he has to manage this against pain. He has to manage it against fatigue." Mourinho said the pain being felt in Matic's bones is making him perform worse and he doesn't have much fight left. "At this time, I don't have any fight in me. I don't have energy, I don't have a spirit. At the moment that [Matic] needs me most is when he has to play, when he is running to try to do something, to help the team."

Conventional photography In digital photography, conventional photography is the usage of existing photographic processes and techniques as they were used during the 20th century, in print production. It is the photographic process used most often by professional photographers as well as by amateur photographers. It is distinct from digital photography, which refers to the processing of film negatives directly into final prints using a computer and the software that performs this operation. Types B&W (black-and-white) B&W is the most common photographic medium, in which the raw digital information is processed into the required black and white image format. It is the opposite of color photography; black and white photographs take on the colors of paper, chemicals, and other materials that are used to produce them. Black and white film is processed in a chemical bath of three chemicals: i) developing agent, ii) fixer, and iii) bleach. The developing agent causes the silver halide in the photographic paper or film to become developed, the fixer causes any undeveloped silver particles in the paper to become converted to silver, and the bleach causes the image to take on the color of the paper.
