What's New in the LocationNav?

LocationNav is an easy navigation tool for large text files that does not only use the navigation key (PgUp / PgDn). At the same time you do not need to have any plug-ins for that. Also the navigation keys does not move the text cursor around, but only marks the position your cursor has been. You will like LocationNav! Installation: Open the plugin folder and extract the plugin to your Notepad++ plugins folder. Run notepad++ and plugin will be automatically selected. Note: Plugin may need to be manually restarted for plugin to take affect. LocationNav Usage: Create a template file with the name of you plugins location file. The template file should contain all the options for LocationNav. Optionally you can show file path at beginning of file and the path will be automatically filled on each line of code that the cursor visited. Options: - Select file path (location of file will be automatically filled on each line that the cursor is visiting) - Should filepath be shown at beginning of file when this plugin is active? -

Optionally: Should the file path be automatically filled when typing selection direction? - Check if any file in the template should be saved on save? - Check if any file in the template should be saved on open? - Check if any file in the template should be saved on close? - Check if current file in template should be opened when you select it from list? - List of template files See more here: LocationNavigationView\(Version2.1\)
